Hopwood, who wrote the three act comedy of this phase of life for the eminent manager, called the play "The Gold Diggers." Gold diggers—that is to say, chorus girls—as they were represented at the Lyceum Theatre with all the Belasco skill last night, are at least of the same family as the salamanders. And salamanders were found to be interesting, but undramatic. On the other hand the chorus girl as James Forbes saw and Rose Stabl embodied her, was an uncommonly refreshing person. Last night the girls of "The Gold Diggers" were al-together of another class. They neither and "rooms" in cheap Madison avenue houses nor did they dwell in cheap ho-tels. They dug their gold to good effect,

Most Attractive of the Lot. The most brilliant member of this coterie that peopled Mr. Hopwood's three act play was acted by Ina Claire. She played an old trick, but both she and Mr. Hopwood, who were at it together played it well. A youth of fortune had developed a well recognizable tendency to marry a more or less restrained gold tigger of irresistible charm. Naturally there were family objections put for-ward by an uncle. So uncle had to be conquered. Ina Claire, as star of "The Gold Diggers," took upon her fair shoul-ders the task. She would so disgus-uncle with the conduct of the ordinar; thorus girl that he would be delighted to have his nephew marry the girl that she represents. But the plan does not work tacks will not find anything that s not lovable in this specimen of the despised class that has so liberally in-creased in this country the families of millionaires and has peopled the peerage of England. Nothing can make him think evil of the particular specimen he has met, whatever she may do. He always has an excuse, so he ultimately finds one Here was Mr. Hopwood also at the height of his achievement, since nowhere else in the play was there such a sense of sophistication. More than once it was not to be denied that the chorus girls were those of the comic papers. But Mr. Belasco had made them human enough review order. The bell of the huge to be comic. 1. You see ours made up! 2. We fit you before you order instead of afterwards!

3. We charge nothing for our label! How's that for summing up the difference between our clothes and those of the best custom tailors'?

As for fabrics-we hate to rub it in, but unless we "tell the world" ourselves. how is everybody going to know that we are the largest importers of fine Scottish and English woolens in all these fortyeight states?

Tailoring? As fine as the fabrics! Would never pay to use the best of woolens and then skimp the workmanship.

Hats, shoes and fixings of the sort we're glad to have worn with our cloth-
